Operational Protocols

1. The Association office keeps each chairperson informed of the membership status of teachers in his/her district and area and furnishes necessary dues materials for him/her to use.
2. Send communications encouraging new teachers and non-paying members to pay their dues.
3. The district/area membership chairperson checks his/her district list and notifies the Association of Teachers who have left the district or are no longer teaching. The membership chairperson is to make personal contacts with the non-members and enlist the help of any agriculture science teacher who may be of some assistance in explaining the benefits of the Association.

4. Student members will receive professional liability insurance.
5. Committee chairpersons and directors stress membership in the National Association of Agricultural Educators, Association for Career and Technical Education, and subscribing to Agriculture Education Magazine to promote and advance agriculture science and technology. The increased cooperation and coordination of national and state associations in solving mutual problems makes the above necessary.
6. At Family Night during the conference, give at least eight major door prizes of up to $2,000 in value. Each director is responsible for one reasonable-quality door prize. Directors can donate personally or solicit a local business for their prize. Door prizes should follow the same pattern as previous years, and name tags should be used for the door prize drawings. Active, Associate, Student, and Honorary members are eligible for the door prize drawing.
7. Staff will send promotional flyers to administrators, counselors, and service centers to advocate for agricultural education and professional development.
8. Staff will communicate with area membership chairpersons before the conference, giving instructions on how they can assist in registration.
